The Medicine that Cures

—IS—

VEGETINE.

Taking into consideration the character of its vouchers, the history of its cures and the immense increasing demand, VEGETINE may be fairly entitled the leading medicine of the age.

For scrofula in the blood, VEGETINE is an infallible remedy, and no person need suffer from tumors, ulcers, and all diseases arising from impure blood, if VEGETINE is used according to directions. There is not a case of scrofula in existence that VEGETINE will not cure, provided, however, the vital functions have not lost their power of action, all that may be said to the contrary notwithstanding.

VEGETINE is pleasant to the taste, mild in its influence, and absolute in its action on disease, as the following unquestionable evidence will show.

PAID NEARLY

JANUARY 2, 1875.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq:

Dear Sir: When about six months old I was vaccinated. The parties who were vaccinated from the same virus died from the humor. The humor spread over me to such an extent that I was rolled in bran to prevent me from scratching my person. The disease finally settled in my head. I remained in this condition about twenty years, troubled all the time with sores breaking in my head and discharging corruption from my ear. At this time a small kernel appeared on my neck, gradually increasing in size until a tumor formed of such immense size I could see it by turning my eyes downward. All this time I was taking various remedies for my blood without any substantial benefit.

I then went to a prominent physician in Boston who, during his treatment of six months, lanced the tumor eight times, which cost me nearly $400. This left me with a rough, aggravated sore, without at all diminishing the size of the tumor, and in a sickly, feeble condition. I consulted another physician in Natick, who, after considerable time, succeeded in healing the sore without reducing the size. At this point I commenced to use VEGETINE, through the earnest persuasion of a friend. After I had taken this medicine about one week I experienced wonderful sensations. My whole body seemed to be undergoing a radical change, until, finally, the tumor broke and discharged frightful quantities. From this time it decreased in size until the bunch disappeared, but my neck still bears the ugly scars of the sore and the lance. I am now healthy and strong and able to work every day.

I will also mention that I have been an acute sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism ever since I can remember, until commencing the use of VEGETINE, when almost immediately all rheumatic pains ceased. This statement I volunteer for the purpose of benefiting other suffering humanity; and you will confer a favor by giving it as much publicity as thought proper.

Very gratefully,
O. M. SAYLES, Ashland, Mass.

What is Vegetine?

It is a compound extracted from barks, roots and herbs. It is nature's remedy. It is perfectly harmless from any bad effect upon the system. It is nourishing and strengthening. It acts directly upon the blood. It quiets the nervous system. It gives you a good, sweet sleep at night. It is a great panacea for our aged fathers and mothers, for it gives them strength, quiets their nerves, and gives them nature's sweet sleep—as has been proved by many an aged person. It is the great Blood Purifier. It is a soothing remedy for our children. It has relieved and cured thousands. It is very pleasant to take; every child likes it. It relieves and cures all diseases originating from impure blood. Try the VEGETINE. Give it a fair trial for your complaints; then you will say to your friend, neighbor and acquaintance, "Try it, it has cured me."

Report from a Practical Chemist and Apothecary.

BOSTON, Jan. 1, 1874.

Dear Sir: This is to certify that I have sold at retail 154⅙ dozen (1852 bottles) of your VEGETINE since April 12, 1870, and can truly say that it has given me best satisfaction of any remedy for the complaints for which it is recommended that I ever sold. Scarcely a day passes without some of my customers testifying to its merits on themselves or their friends. I am perfectly cognizant of several cases of scrofulous Tumors being cured by VEGETINE alone in this vicinity.

Very respectfully yours,
A. I. GILMAN, 468 Broadway.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1875.

ABOUT WOMAN.

Spanish women are great S'noras.

Young woman, Go West! is Mrs. Livermore's advice.

The two most ineffectual things in the world are undoubtedly a blue-eyed woman's rage and a liquor law.

A Boston man's second wife has had him arrested for using her money to buy his first wife a tombstone with poetry on it.

Wisdom for women: "It is better to love a man that you can never marry than to marry a man that you can never love."

Before the "woman question" had exerted any influence women were employed as publishers, editors and compositors.

The forewoman in a match factory in Manchester has run away with an English naval officer of high degree. She understood the art of match making pretty thoroughly.

Husband and wife are no longer one in Illinois, since under a recent law they may sue each other. Accordingly, a Chicago husband has brought suit against his wife to compel her to fulfill a contract with him.

"Sarah, you're a good gal, but there ain't no gal agoing to call for two plates of ice-cream on me and keep me for her feller!" were the closing remarks of a young gentleman upon parting with his inamorata.

"Nobody rides over the potatoes that way my good woman." This was what a French peasant near Sessetot said to a lady on horseback, who, to get out of the sun a little, rode across a field in the shadows of some trees. But he didn't know it was the Empress of Austria.

"Madame," exclaimed a cross-grained physician to a patient, "if women are admitted to Paradise, their tongues would make it purgatory." "And some physicians, if allowed to practice there," replied the lady, "would soon make it a desert."

Edmund Yates is said by a correspondent to have offered a distinguished authoress ten guineas per week for a weekly portion (eight columns in length) of a novel; and, upon the lady saying that her terms were double that amount, to have expressed great surprise. Whereupon the lady said: "I have long since given up sacrificing my bread and butter in order to furnish gentlemen like yourself with cakes and wine."

One of Mrs. Kemble's best stories relates to Eugenia, late empress of the French, while the emperor was absent in the Italian campaign (during which Magenta and Solferino were fought). She thus wrote to a female friend, describing her anxiety for him and her principal employment: "Ah, machere, quelle existence! Je ne fais que trembler, et essayer des robes!" (Oh my dear, what a life! I do nothing but tremble and try on dresses!)

Of course she did.—A middle aged woman fell as she was descending a pair of stairs on Jefferson avenue yesterday, and the first man to help her reach her feet was a banker who happened to be passing. Did you fall, madame? he inquired, as he seized her arm. Fall? Of course I fell, you fool, you! You don't suppose I'd sit down here to rest, do you? she snapped. He didn't say.

A feeling heart is often a great incentive to valor, as witness the case of four schoolgirls in East Bridgeport, Conn., Monday, who encountered eight boys on the point of setting fire to a kitten dipped in kerosene. Begging and offers to buy being equally lost on the little wretches the determined champions pitched in with such weapons as came handy, and drove the would-be torturers from the field, carrying off the victim in triumph. East Bridgeport is to be congratulated on her girls, but the less said about the boys, the better.

It is a perfectly safe thing for a criticised actress to horsewhip the critical press, when the representative of the press is a fragile, unprotected male, but when the weapon which is mightier than the sword is wielded by a firm feminine hand, the case is different. And such was the recent experience of an aggrieved comedienne who, undertaking to cowhide Mrs. Laura Gorden, now "editress" of a California paper, was speedily reduced, to use the words of a local reporter, to a state of baldness that would excite envy in the heart of a turnip.—[New York World.

Old Winston was a negro preacher in Virginia, and his ideas of theology and human nature were often very original. A gentleman thus accosted the old gentleman one Sunday: Winston, I understand you believe every woman has seven devils. How can you prove it? Well sah, did you never read in de Bible how seven debbles were cast ou'r Mary Magalin? Oh, yes! I've read that. Did you ebber hear of 'em bein' cast out of any oder woman, sah? No, I never did. Well, den, all de odders got em yet.

The following description is given in an account of a Mongolian marriage ceremony in San Francisco: The bride did not wear white with orange flowers and diamonds. A little margin of Ophir had been wasted in broadcloth, which was made in the style of Chinese feminine attire—a loose sacque and trousers. Delicate gold earrings of native manufacture hung from the ears. Gold buttons, made of the pretty gold dollars of commerce, adorned the sack profusely, making a dazzling glitter in the gaslight.

A writer on life in Chili says: Most of the ladies have a dusky pale complexion and bright black eyes, in which lurk coquettish glances, fatal, I have no doubt, to the peace of mind of their male acquaintances. They mostly dress in black or dark colors, and wear no bonnet, the mantilla being brought over the head and half across the face, leaving only one eye exposed, which is generally of such a type as to create a wish to behold its fellow. I wish I could convey some idea of the graceful elegance of carriage that even the poorest of the Chilian women display. But for all that one round, rosy, laughing, Scotch lassie's sonsy face far transcends their best looks, and affords a glimpse of possible happiness that their most refined manners never can give.

The old jealousies based upon petty rivalries in dress and flirtation which disfigured the character of so many women of the past, are dead in the great mass of womankind, smothered by the vigorous growth of nobler interests, so that, as Mrs. Blackwell points out, most women are pained when a woman who comes before the public in any capacity fails, whether they do or do not approve her position and sympathize with her opinions. Probably tenth-rate orators and press correspondents, who, as Lowell says of certain poets, "deal out inspiration and water, and who would sacrifice their own mothers for the sake of a feeble witticism, will continue to jest about the jealousy of women toward each other, but they are twanging a broken string.

The breaking of the ground for the Woman's Pavilion at Philadelphia has made the centennial, as it relates to women, a topic of conversation, and stimulates the inquiry as to what is being done among women to make the representation a respectable one. It is considered high time that women bestirred themselves in the matter, and, setting aside the fact that republics have been and are ungrateful, set themselves instantly at work everywhere to collect whatever can be discovered representative of the special labor of women for the past century, make a list and apply at once to have it admitted and classified. Lace-work, needle-work, embroidery, books, pictures, sculpture, engraving, ornamental articles, arrangement and preservation of leaves, painting, object-work of all kinds, exhibition of processes, or comparison of the differences between processes a hundred years ago and today, bridal outfits in 1776 and 1876 would all find a place. A piece of work executed by the Empress Josephine has been put in the hands of one lady, who has also a foot-stool worked by the fair hands of the Empress Eugenie. People who have patent corsets, extraordinary frills and amazing furbelows are already active, and are anxious to place them on exhibition; and there is a tendency upon the part of the dress reformers, generally, to flaunt their favorite devices in the face of the universe. The Philadelphia papers do not extend the most cordial welcome to these reformers, and there is a hope that the chemiloon will be declared contraband; that the baggy trousers will be accounted felonious, and that the women's department will be devoted to women's work as it appears in the myriad excellent articles of use and beauty which are the fruits of honest toil and not reforming foolery.

THE DAY.

We improve this earliest opportunity to say that we were misinformed as to some of the facts of the Salter affair as published in our last issue, and we take pleasure in saying that, as at present advised, the statements as to the course of Messrs. Spooner and Engs and also as to that of Marshal Simmons were entirely incorrect.

Mr. Thomas Coggeshall has given us the following figures relative to the state farm. In the work house for inebriates, vagrants and fallen women there are 202 men and 75 women, total 277. In the insane asylum are 86 men and 84 women, total 170. In the almshouse for the itinerant poor are 43 men, 55 women, 10 boys and 13 girls, total 121. The grand total of persons on the farm is 568, an increase for the month of October of 32.

The record of disasters at sea today is quite formidable. In addition to the sad calamity to the steamer Pacific, the steamer City of Maco, bound from New York to Galveston, was burned to the water's edge while anchored outside the bar of that harbor at an early hour yesterday morning, and it is feared all on board perished, as no tidings of passengers or crew had been learned up to a late hour last evening. Besides these disasters, the brig J. W. Spencer and schooner James Freeman of Boston were lost, the former on the 12th of September, and the latter on the 8th instant.

STATE MISCELLANY.

The safe of Browning, Capron & Co., in Apponaug was blown open by professional burglars Saturday night and robbed of several hundred dollars.

Owing to a recent reduction of wages at the Orrin mill, East Greenwich, the operatives of the carding and spinning rooms, with a few weavers, turned out Monday morning, and refused to work.

The town of Warwick has a population of 11,614: of which 5,584 are males and 5,930 are females. Of this number 6,082 are of foreign parentage and 5,532 of American parentage, and 206 are colored. There are 1,907 houses, 4 of which are brick, 6 of stone and 1,897 of wood, and 80 houses are unoccupied. The entire population of Kent county is 10,348; as follows: Warwick, 11,714; Coventry, 4,580; East Greenwich, 3,120; West Greenwich, 1,034. The population of the whole state is 258,239, of which 122,676 are males and 129,292 are females.

THE BRIDGE AT SLADE'S FERRY.

The bridge rests upon six piers made of pneumatic tubes, each tube being a cast iron cylinder, eleven of which are 8 feet in diameter and six 4 feet, and 1½ inches thick, and put together in sections of 10 feet each, strongly bolted together at the flanges with 47 wrought iron bolts, 1½ inches in diameter. These tubes are sunk to the solid clay beneath the stream, on which they rest perpendicularly, and are filled solid, full of concrete masonry. The iron is the gray mottled quality, and resists the action of salt water better than any quality known. Two cylinders form each of the piers, except the one for the draw, which consists of seven set in a cluster, as a support for the movement of the huge swing draw, of which the centre is 8 feet, and the other 6,4 feet in diameter. These cylinders rest upon a solid stratum, some 30 to 35 feet below the bottom of the river, the water varying from 20 to 27 feet, making one of the piers 87 feet in length. At each end a huge pier supports the bridge, and the whole length is 955 feet and width 20 feet, with a carriage road below and a railway track on top. The superstructure is of iron, and erected over the deepest water yet spanned by a bridge of this sort, and its construction reflects great credit upon the Old Colony Railway Company, which has had the job to perfect.

They have done a work which will last, and at a reasonable expense, $300,000 being near the amount of outlay. Mr. E. N. Winslow, chief engineer of the Old Colony road, has had charge of the work, and the plan of the bridge and labor of getting it up and supervising the work has fallen, almost entirely, upon him, and the result is a work that commends itself and the engineer.

The test of the new bridge was made Tuesday, according to notice, commencing at 11 o'clock A. M., in the presence of a large concourse of citizens. The test on the first pier was made with a quantity of pig iron, which with the teams weighed 95 tons placed on the lower floor and a train of cars with 200 tons of stone on the upper or railway floor of the bridge, altogether making a weight of about two tons to the lineal foot, or twice the weight of a 60 ton locomotive.

As the section is 130 feet in length, it will be seen that this must have given a terrible strain, and yet the deflection was only 44-1000ths of a foot on the south side, and 69-1000ths of a foot on the north side of the bridge, or a little more than ½ an inch on the south, and a little less than ⅞th of an inch on the north side. The same test applied to the second span showed a similar result, and that was as far as the test had proceeded up to noon, when operations were suspended for dinner. It is believed the test will be satisfactory clear through, and the bridge be pronounced a complete success.—[Fall River News.

PRESERVING TENDER BULBS AND TUBERS.

If there is any secret in connection with keeping tender bulbs and tubers in a dormant and sound condition through Winter, it is in properly drying them off at the start. If taken up in wet weather covered with mud, and this is not removed before packing away they are pretty certain to decay. Gladiolus, Tuberoses, Cannas, Caladium, Tegridias and other tropical tubers and bulbs usually planted out in Summer and kept in a dry state during the Winter, are very sensitive to cold and moisture, and there is very little danger of keeping them too dry and warm. If kept in a green-house, there is little danger of loss if spread out upon a shelf or put in bags and hung up in some convenient, dry place, but when placed in a cellar they are likely to come moldy and rotten; unless considerable care is given to thoroughly drying them before packing away. There is probably no better way of preserving in cellars than to dry thoroughly and then put them into coarse cloth bags and hang up where they can be frequently examined during cold weather. If at any time the bulbs show signs of moldiness they can be readily taken into the kitchen or elsewhere and dried off. If a person has an upper room warm enough to prevent freezing, it will be a better place to keep such things than a cellar. Dahlias usually remain sound if packed in kiln-dried sand in tight barrels or boxes and placed in a warm cellar. The barrels or boxes should be raised some distance from the bottom of the cellar, instead of being placed directly upon it. Dry, pulverized charcoal is also an excellent material in which to keep delicate tubers through Winter.—[Rural New Yorker.

JOHN B. GOUGH'S LECTURE.

The Opera House was filled last evening by an audience that must have gratified the lecture association, and, so far as numbers went, inspired the orator. The seats were all taken, and the aisles were filled with folding chairs. Col. Stedman apologized to the audience for their crowded condition, and said that the demand for tickets had been so great that the association had felt obliged to sell more tickets than they wished or had intended to sell. With a facetious allusion to Mr. Gough's third term as a lecturer in Newport he introduced the speaker.

Mr. Gough's subject was "Blunders." His lecture was thoroughly characteristic, and was equal to his older lectures. He passed from "gay to grave, from lively to severe," now treating the audience to a shower of Irish or American bulls, and now putting his whole soul into a most earnest protest against some social, political or moral blunder. Among these were the neglect of children in our large cities, the election of incapable and dishonest men to office, the tolerance of Mormonism and the encouragement of the liquor traffic, the direct cost of which to the country is $8,000,000 a year, not to speak of its indirect costs.

Mr. Gough said in the first place that he came not to amuse but to instruct. But he is not didactic, and his instruction, sound and earnest as it was, was relieved at intervals by scores of good stories told in his best style, than which there is nothing better in the narrative line. The audience listened attentively, laughed heartily after its efforts at self-control proved unavailing, and most emphatically applauded all that the lecturer said in favor of free public schools, and expulsion of the Bible from them.

The lecture course opens favorably in every way, including the weather.

THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

The regular monthly meeting of the school committee was held Monday evening.

The following members were present. The Hon. Thomas Coggeshall, chairman; Messrs. C. H. Burdick, J. T. Burdick, J. P. Cotton, William E. Crandall, J. H. Cozzens, M. Van Horne, L. D. Simmons, T. W. Higginson and S. W. Butler.

The committee on evening schools made a report recommending the opening of an evening school in Clarke street at the beginning of the next term of the public schools, and continuing it during the Winter term or so long as the number of persons attending shall warrant. That the sessions of said school be as before, Monday and Wednesday evenings, beginning at 7 P. M. and closing at 9 P. M. That the studies range from primary to first grammar, that special attention be given to writing, book-keeping, commercial arithmetic and spelling and that a sufficient number of teachers be employed to accommodate all who wish to attend. The report was received and unanimously adopted.

The superintendent reported the schools in good condition, the attendance and interest manifestly increasing and general good feeling and harmony prevailing. One grammar school, two intermediate and three primary schools being full no admissions have been made to them during the last month and scholars have to be sent out of the district to be accommodated.

The following is the number of pupils in the schools Nov. 5th. High school 145. Grammar schools 436. Intermediate 341. Primaries 632. Total 1234.

Average attendance for the week ninety-four and five tenths per cent. Several schools of the grammar grade reported one hundred per cent. attending. Average number of scholars to each teacher, in the grammar department, 40—intermediate, 42—first primary, 40—second primary, 40—sub-primary, 51. Largest number in any one school 64. An assistant has been engaged in the above school for the remainder of the term; the grade being sub-primary there will probably be fewer in attendance during the Winter term.

CESS POOLS.

We have repeatedly called attention to the evils and dangers connected with the existence of cess-pools in cities and towns. Our neighboring city of Providence is becoming thoroughly aroused in regard to the perils of the system, although it is in but partial operation there. Newport is so situated that the danger here is much more great than there and the time is not far off when some decisive action must be taken on the water question or we must lose our reputation as a place desirable for residences. We ask all our readers to give careful attention to the following letter from Dr. Snow to the Providence board of aldermen, urging that body to take action on the subject:

OFFICE OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF HEALTH, Providence, Nov. 4, 1875.

To the Honorable Board of Aldermen:

Gentlemen—Thousands of facts have been collected, and many volumes have been written, showing the evil effects of cess-pools upon the public health, and the necessity of abolishing them entirely from cities. It has been found that "cess-pools are pestilential nuisances, and one of the greatest abominations which can possibly be suffered to exist in the midst of a large city;" and, further, "that it is impossible for any population to be healthy living amid cess-pools or upon a soil permeated by decomposing animal and vegetable refuse."

The reports of the general board of health of England furnish abundant evidence upon the subject, and their statements, founded upon a long experience and a careful investigation of thousands of facts, correspond with the views of all who have examined the subject, and are the best authority in the world. In a report containing "Minutes of Information relating to house drainage, sewerage, &c.," I find the following:

The testimony of such medical men as have duly observed the antecedents of disease is now unanimous to the effect that no population, living among cess-pool emanations, or in the air rendered impure by such causes, can continue to be healthy. The strong may withstand these noxious influences for a time, but even their general health is eventually lowered, and their constitutions undermined by continued exposure to such emanations; while the effect, especially when concentrated upon the weakly and susceptible, is, in certain atmospheric conditions, extensively and rapidly fatal."

Dr. Lyon Playfair, in evidence given in relation to cholera, before a committee of the English board of health, says:

"I think we have made very little progress in public hygiene if cess-pools are allowed to remain in cities. The whole progress of the recent inquiries into the public health has pointed to the necessity of their prevention.

In accordance with these views, in the admirable scheme of sanitary reform, conducted by the general board of health of England, it is provided that "As soon as a proper survey and system of levels have been obtained, the first duty of a local board of health will be the prosecution of measures requisite for the entire abolition of all cess-pools and the prevention of their future formation, by the complete drainage of every house in the town."

Such are the decisions of the best authority in the world in relation to the effects upon the public health, of one of the worst sources of impure air, and consequent disease and ill-health, that we have in Providence.

All the preceding remarks are copied from a report which I presented to the board of aldermen, dated August 15, 1857, more than eighteen years since. I might now add to this evidence indefinitely, but it is not necessary. The views then expressed are now universally accepted as correct by all who have given attention to the subject, and it is now universally conceded to be the duty of every city to act in accordance with them.

At the time that report was written, the water used for household purposes in the city, was almost entirely well water, or rain water collected in cisterns; we had no sewers, except a few stone drains built for the drainage of the soil, and the law required every house to be supplied with a suitable drain and cess-pool for slop and sink-water. With a scanty supply of water and no under-ground sewers, there was no choice but to continue the cess-pools for a time, and endeavor to keep them in decent order, to avoid the greater danger of having all the slop-water on the surface of the ground.

While then fully recognizing, in the subject referred to, the great dangers from cess-pools, I urged at length "the construction of water-tight channels under ground which will convey all the filthy liquids, rapidly and without obstruction, beyond the limits of the city, "as the only practicable remedy for the cess-pool nuisance." In conclusion, I said:

"In view of the great evils arising from cess-pools, for which street sewers are the only remedy; and without this arrangement for the removal of the filthy water, the conclusion is inevitable, that a general system of street sewers must be commenced in Providence, and the importance of the subject is apparent."

In the same report I also express the opinion to which I still adhere, and which is now of practical importance, that if we had an abundance of pure water to wash the gutters, it would be less injurious to the public health to have all the slop-water run into the street gutters than to collect it in cess-pools, as was then, and is still, required by law, and is generally practiced, in this city.

The time has now come when the policy and the practice in regard to cess-pools can be changed, and when it seems to be the duty of the authorities to change them. We have now an inexhaustible supply of pure water, which is very generally introduced in all the thickly settled portions of the city. We have also commenced a general system of sewers, constructed after the best known methods, and based upon a careful survey of the topography of the whole city. Many miles of these sewers are already constructed, and the work is progressing rapidly.

We are then, at the present time, in a situation to act in relation to cess-pools, and I would recommend:

First, That all cess-pools be prohibited and filled upon all estates abutting upon the streets where the new sewers are completed. This action, I suppose, to be within the power of the board of health.

Second. That authority be obtained from the General Assembly by which all persons living upon streets where the new sewers are completed, may be compelled to make connections with the sewers for all slop water and other filthy liquids from their estates.

Third. Where the Pawtuxet water is in any street which has paved gutters, and no sewers, it is my opinion that it would be better for the public health to prohibit cess-pools, and require the sink water to run into the gutters.

To complete this work as it should be done, in order to prevent further accumulation of filth in the soil, it is evident that some action will be needed in relation to privy vaults. This will be the subject of future communication.

Respectfully, EDWIN M. SNOW, Superintendent of Health.

The mystery of writing advertisements consists mainly in saying in a few plain words exactly what it is desired to say: precisely as it would be written in a letter or told to an acquaintance. Let the prominent line be so arranged as to catch the eye of the class of persons likely to be interested. When this is done the rest will be read, although set in small type.

Dragging Out Existence.

The nervous, weakly invalid does not enjoy life, but merely "drags out existence," as the phrase is, Unfitted for the active pursuits of life, and incapable of partaking of its pleasures, to which health alone can give a zest; disinclined to social intercourse, and a prey to melancholy, the valetudinarian is indeed an object of pity. Yet there is nothing in all this that cannot be remedied by that genial alterative, tonic and nervine, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which supplies deficient stamina, braces the nervous system, and overcomes those bodily irregularities to which nervous weakness is most frequently attributable. Diseases of the kidney and bladder imperfect digestion and uterine troubles are fertile sources of debility. Their eradication, however, becomes a matter of certainty when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are systematically used for that purpose. The Bitters likewise annihilate and prevent fever and ague and other debilitating febrile complaints of a malarial nature.

It requires no debate or controversy to prove that Hunt's Remedy will extirpate dropsy, Bright's disease, kidney, bladder and glandular complaints, retention and incontinence of urine, diabetes, gravel, nervous debility, female complaints, and maladies of the urino-genital organs in either sex. Living witnesses are willing to bear testimony to its valuable medicinal and curative properties. Family physicians regularly prescribe it for uterine obstructions.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP, FOR THE CURE OF CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, AND COLDS.

The great virtue of this medicine is that it ripens the matter and throws it out of the system, purifies the blood, and thus effects a cure.

SCHENCK'S SEA WEED TONIC, FOR THE CURE OF DYSPEPSIA, INDIGESTION, &C.

The Tonic produces a healthy action of the stomach, creating an appetite, forming chyle, and curing the most obstinate cases of Indigestion.

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS, FOR THE CURE OF LIVER COMPLAINT, &C.

These Pills are alterative, and produce a healthy action of the liver, without the least danger, as they are free from calomel, and yet more efficacious in restoring a healthy action of the liver.

These remedies are a certain cure for Consumption as the Pulmonic Syrup ripens the matter and purifies the blood. The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, create a healthy bile, and remove all diseases of the liver, often a cause of Consumption. The Sea Weed Tonic gives tone and strength to the stomach, makes a good digestion, and enables the organs to form good blood; and thus creates a healthy circulation of healthy blood. The combined action of these medicines, as thus explained, will cure every case of Consumption, if taken in time, and the use of the medicines persevered in.

Dr. Schenck is professionally at his principal office, corner SIXTH and ARCH STREETS, Philadelphia, every Monday, where all letters of advice must be addressed. nov5-1m Newport Daily News.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1875.

GENERAL NEWS.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Mississippi Politics.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.

The friends of Mr. Pease propose to contest his removal under the tenure of office act as Postmaster at Vicksburg by opposing the confirmation of his successor. The colored Senator Bruce has joined hands with Ames against all of Ames's opponents within the Republican party in that state.

The Alabama Commission.

Some of the judges of the Alabama court have been made ill by their severe labors. The commission expires by limitation January 22, and great efforts have been made to finish the work by that time. This is a physical impossibility, and a further extension of time will be asked from Congress.

Postal Cards.

The Post Office Department has decided that a postal card cannot be twice sent through the mails to the same address by affixing an unused one cent stamp with the second sending. If it is so sent, it is to be charged with letter postage.

FROM NEW YORK.

Secret Agents of Spain Enlisting Men for Service in Cuba.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.

The Mail says recruits are being taken in this city by secret agents in the service of the Spanish government from among the most indigent of our foreign population, Italians, Irish, Poles and other European nationalities, at the rate of $100, gold, and a promise of a land grant of fifty acres at the close of the war in Cuba, for the term of one year from the date of their being mustered into the army.

Convicted of Smuggling.

The trial of Colonel Robert Dosanges, which has been in progress before Judge Benedict in the criminal branch of the United States circuit court, and who is charged with passing silk goods though the custom house under valuation, was considered today. The jury after being addressed by the court, were absent only a few moments and rendered a verdict of guilty. A motion in arrest of judgment was read by the counsel for the defence, and the time for hearing the argument on the motion was fixed for Saturday next, and the prisoner was remanded.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE PACIFIC COAST DISASTER.

Facts Concerning Steamer Pacific. 200 Souls on Board.—The Disaster Caused by Collision with Another Vessel.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9.

The lost steamship Pacific was a modern side-wheel steamer, of about 900 tons, built in 1851 by W. P. Brown of New York. It was nearly rebuilt here by the Pacific Mail Company two years ago; docked and surveyed the trip before last, and given a certificate of "A2." She was valued at about $100,000. She had a cargo of hops and oats, worth about $25,000. The insurance on the ship was about $17,500. Capt. Howell has the reputation of being an efficient officer.

Statement of Jelly, the Survivor.

A dispatch from Port Townsend says Henry F. Jelly, supposed to be the sole survivor of the steamer Pacific, was brought here by the ship Messenger in a wretched condition, having been on a raft 36 hours before he was picked up. He says the Pacific collided with some other vessel, whose light he saw; but in his interview with Captain Gilkey of the Messenger, lasting 12 hours, he made no mention of the lights of a vessel, and some think him laboring under hallucination. Experienced navigators here think it more likely that she struck a sunken rock. Jelly makes a statement to the following effect: I took a cabin passage on the Pacific from Victoria, leaving at a quarter past nine the morning of Thursday, the 4th inst. There were about 200 people on board. The steamer worked all day against a southeaster, the crew constantly pumping water into the boat to trim the ship. Two boats were aback the paddle box and had no oars in them. Others had oars. Between 8 and 9 in the evening, while in bed, I as if the vessel had struck a rock. Heard something fall as if rocks had fallen. The starboard bow bell was struck to stop, back and go ahead. Went on deck, heard voices say, "it's all right, we have struck a vessel." Saw the vessel's lights at a distance, but do not think they were colored, but paid little attention. Returned to the cabin and noticed that the ship took a heavy list to port. Went on deck to the pilot house, and heard some one say she is making water very fast. The captain coming out of his room asked him if there were any blue lights or guns. He said the blue lights were in the pilot house. Got them and burned fire. Noticed the engines still working, but no one at the wheel.

Heard a Crash and Felt a Shock

The Attempt to Escape.

Went to the starboard side, forward of the paddle box, where a number of men were trying to get out the long boat, but could not. Went to the port forward and helped five or six women into it. Tried to get the boat off, but could not move it. There were about twenty women in it. Heard the boats aback the paddles had got off, but did not see them. Think it was about an hour after the steamer struck when she listed so much. The port boat was in the water. I was in that boat. When cut loose from the davits the boat filled and turned over. Got on her bottom and helped several up with me.

The Steamer Sinks.

Immediately after the steamer seemed to break in two, fore and aft. The smoke stack fell and struck one boat and the steamer sunk. Think about all the women were in one boat, and fear they were all drowned when the boat upset. This was about ten in the evening. The night was not dark nor the sea very rough, but there was a fresh breeze. Afterward left the bottom of the boat, and with another man climbed in the top of the pilot house, floating near. The next morning got some life preservers, floating near the house, and with their ropes lashed myself and my companion to the house.

Other People on Rafts.

Saw three rafts; the first had one man on it; the next had three men and a woman; could not make the other out for the distance, except there were people on it; think we were thirty or forty miles south of Cape Flattery when the vessel sunk; passed the light on Tattoosh Island between four and five in the evening; I and my companion were on the pilot house all of Friday until about four P. M., when he died, cut him loose; the sea was running very high all day, and was washing over us; soon after he died sighted the vessel; called and heard the people on the other raft calling, but the vessel did not come near; Friday night there was but little wind until morning, when the wind and sea rose; was then within a mile of the shore of Vancouver Island; sighted two vessels on the American shore, which passed on; about ten A. M. Saturday the ship Messenger picked me up.

AGRICULTURAL.

FOWLS FOR THE FAMILY.

What greater folly than to give away the material and then be compelled to buy the manufactured article at the highest price? Yet this is one of the commonest instances of the want of economy. Many families, particularly in the smallest cities, throw all the scraps from the table into the swill barrel, for the benefit of some lucky Colt, and then pay an extravagant price for small and stale eggs. The sensible plan is to keep a few fowls, and give your scraps to these, thus turning your refuse into money. Fowls can be kept in this way at little or no cost, supplying the family with their breakfast eggs, and giving their keepers a delightful occupation in caring for a thrifty flock of handsome fowls, not merely for the grown folks; but also for the children, who will enter into the pursuit with the greatest zeal and delight in watching all the various processes of the hen house, the laying, the setting, the growth of the little chickens, and the interesting occupation of gathering the pearly, fresh-laid eggs.—[The Poultry Nation.

CLEAN STABLES.

A clean and wholesome stable is a great comfort to a horse during hot weather. The stifling, poisonous atmosphere in which some farm horses pass the night after a hard day's work in the field, is productive of unrest and ill health. Flies abound in such stables, and those savage pests, which are by many mistaken for house flies, are a different and blood-thirsty species stomoxus calcitrans; so called from its persecutions, causing the horses to kick incessantly. These prevent both the horse and its humane owner from resting in comfort. Frequent washing of the floor with water, clean bedding of pine sawdust or dry earth and permitting the horses to void their urine before they enter the stable, will go far to keep the animals comfortable. In some stables, when the horses come in from their work, and after watering, they are led to the manure pile, where they at once void their urine, and thus keep the stables clean. They are led there again early in the morning, and soon become habituated to the practice. If this was generally done, the stable would be less disagreeable than it now is, and the farm house would not be pervaded with its odor after every visit to it.

THE USES OF CHARCOAL.

By keeping charcoal in a hog pen there will be but little odor or disagreeable smell, such as is usual. The hogs appear to thrive better and faster, than in a strong smelling sty. They will consume quite a quantity, which undoubtedly does them good. Some should be powdered, and some left in chunks: the powdered absorbs the wet, and the hogs will eat the lumps as they desire it. The refuse makes a most excellent manure for onions or any vegetables. By putting a small quantity in the horse stable every day, under the horse, it will absorb the wet, and keep the stable perfectly sweet and wholesome. As it is removed from the stable, keep it under shelter, dry it and sow it on the meadows; the increase in the crop will pay for the trouble. Cow stables will receive the same benefit and produce the same results. It is also invaluable in the poultry house in keeping it wholesome for the fowls, and making a most valuable manure. The fowls will consume a part of it, and are not so liable to disease. It is also very desirable in the sheep pens or yards. By putting a bushel or so of the powdered charcoal down the water closet, it will remove the disagreeable smell which generally attends such places and will remove the great objection there is to cleaning them out. When charcoal is powdered and a little dropped into a potato hill when planted, it will double the crop, and will improve the quality beyond expectation. An objection to it is that it is black and will blacken any person that handles it. I have powdered it by pounding it on the barn floor, and also by putting through an old cider mill, but it is undoubtedly dirty work any way you can fix it. But "he that would catch fish must not mind getting wet."—[Cor. Country Gentleman.

DOES FARMING PAY IN MASSACHUSETTS?

Half a century ago, and previous to that, the houses of the Newbury, Oldtown, farmers were poor and shabby. We remember one on a farm now profitably cultivated where the women wore men's overcoats in Winter to keep themselves warm, and the candle was placed in a lantern in Winter, lest the wind which blew through the open cracks should extinguish it. This was not an exaggerated instance, as there were worse houses on richer farms. The crops were different from what they are now. The farmers raised their own corn, beef, pork, butter and cheese, and in many houses there were still spinning wheels and looms, and flax was grown, and sheets and towels and sometimes woolen cloth made.

Many of the farms were mortgaged, and good field land was allowed to run to waste. The men did not work very hard, but as they had enough to eat and to drink they did not vex themselves, and lived generally to a good old age. There was not much money coming in, and a cent was a treasure hard to part with. Capt. David Little astonished his neighbors by farming for the market and getting rich by leaving the old ruts, and since that time it has been the plan to farm for profit and to study what was the most profitable method and crops. The result is striking to any one who can remember that neighborhood half a century ago and contrast it with its present aspect. Very few people in cities live in houses so roomy, comfortable and convenient. The fields are cultivated to their utmost, and the big barns are even more conclusive evidence of prosperity than the houses.

There is not a really poor person in the parish, and it is hard to find objects of charity within the first parish to receive the annual contribution for the poor made at Thanksgiving time. Few of the young men have gone to California and those who served in the war find it more profitable to stay at home than go elsewhere. Ministers from abroad are universally struck with the uncommonly large number of young men at the Sunday services in the meeting-house, and this is not because they are too unenterprising to go abroad, but that they have the enterprise and energy to wring from the soil a prosperity as satisfying and more secure than could be got from a railroad or a mill, a shoe manufactory or an insurance office. The fact is a community that has the intelligence and enterprise to do it can dig a competence out of our rugged New England soil.—[Newburyport Herald.

FIRE ALARM REGULATIONS.

To send out an alarm.

Any person who discovers a fire is requested to immediately give the alarm by crying fire, and, going to the box nearest the fire, to send out a general alarm by procuring the key, unlocking the box, and firmly putting the hook down, once only, then closing the door, being careful to see that it is locked, and returning the key.

The person sending out an alarm from a box is requested to remain near said box until the first engine arrives, to direct the firemen to the exact locality of the fire.

Cautions.

Never pull a box if the small gong inside is striking or the machinery of the box is heard running.

Do not pull a box for a fire seen at a distance, or unless you are aware of the locality of a fire.

Key holders are requested not to allow their keys to be taken except by responsible parties.

Bell Ringers.

Bell ringers are engaged to ring the following church bells in connection with the telegraphic alarm:

The First and North Baptist, United Congregational and Emmanuel with instructions to ring their respective bells for five minutes immediately after the telegraphic alarm has completed its four rounds and then to repeat eight times the number of the box from which the alarm is sent.

Recall.

Nine blows upon the telegraphic alarm bells will indicate that the fire is out and that the services of the department are not required.

Testing the Apparatus.

One stroke on the bells by the telegraphic alarm will simply indicate that the apparatus is in good order.
